The jury might possibly ask what motive prisoner could have for such an act and he should call evidence to show that in the house. where the feast was given there was living a woman with a considerable sum of money and that prisoner had on more than one occasion previously expressed his intention of robbing her. After several witnesses had been called, the prisoner pleaded guilty.

The most touching sight to the spectator, says the Japan Gazette, is the little children who have lost their parents, and have in many cases no relations that they know. They are wandering about crying or biting their fingers. An almost equally sad sight is to see men who have up till now been respected and esteemed as men of position, now wandering homeless and destitute, carrying perhaps a single futon on their backs, and with some hastily

The following incident is reported:--Mr. Miyata, a member of Parliament for a district of Aichi ken, resides in Haguri-gun, Owari Province. When the earthquake occurred, Mrs. Miyata ran out of doors instantly, but at the same moment the ground opened and she fell therein. Her daughter, noticing her danger, at once went to her assistance and she also fell in the fissure. Just at that moment ashes and earth were emitted, and the two ladies were never their waists.

While workmen were clearing away the debris of the Owari Spinning Mill on the 3rd instant, they heard a faint cry, and working in haste they presently unearthed two women who had been imprisoned in the ruins without food or drink ever since the 28th ult. Can we picture more awful situation? One of the poor creatures fainted with joy, at their resone, but was speedily restored by medical treatment and both will probably do well.

In the district which is stated to have been the centre of the seismic disturbance the face of the country has been entirely changed, and to give an adequate idea of the transformation of the scenery we cannot do better than reproduce the official report of Mr. Iguchi Ryotaro, Chief of the Gifu Meteorological Observatory, who was despatched to the Neo Valley, the centre of the earthquake, to make practical investigations This official says :- The mountain at Fujitani, Onza-Nogo, Nishi-Neo-mura, Ono-gun, is situated directly below Mount Haku (Hakuzan), with higher peaks to the right and left. For 50 years past there have existed there two or three cavities, each about 60 feet across, and it is said that when a stone or piece of wood was thrown to the bottom the sound could be heard for hours. From this could be judged the great depth. About 6.35 a.m. on the 28th ultimo a violent rumbling was heard, and at the same moment the peaks on the right hand side subsided, raising sand and earth like smoke and fog, and for a time various villages near were hidden from sight. The shapes of several mountains thereabouts were totally changed, summits being lowered and the lower parts raised over an extent of over one ri Some were reduced to about half their size, and others changed position. It is stated that the well-known gold and silver wells and also the Sengen Shrine at the summit must have been totally destroyed. We learn from the Nichi Nichi that news has been received at the Central Meteorological Observatory that a marvellous subsidence took place on the 28th at Neo-mura, Gifu, the supposed centre of the earthquake. An excavation was made measuring one ri across and 200 feet in depth, and huge rocks around its edge have over balanced and tumbled down into the chasm from time to time since, shaking the earth for a great distance at each collapse, and sinking into the abyes with a roar like thunder. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at th Daily Press Office. Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled.
